

Contributors to this issue

FANG Huanhai is a native of Shuyang, Jiangsu Province. He received his PhD from Fudan University. Currently he is a Professor at Overseas Education College, Xiamen University. Dr Fang's research focuses on Teaching Chinese as a Second Language & Cognitive Linguistics. Email: fhuanhai@163.com

LIU Zhenping is Assistant Professor of Asian Languages & Cultures at the National Institute of Education at Nanyang Technological University, Singapore. His research areas include Chinese grammar, Chinese Phonology and teaching Chinese to Speakers of Other Languages. Email: zhenping.liu@nie.edu.sg

SHEN Jiaxuan is Professor of Chinese Linguistics at the Institute of Linguistics, Chinese Academy of Social Sciences. He is a Fellow of the Academy and now chairman of the Linguistic Society of China. His research interest lies in Chinese grammar, cognitive linguistics and linguistic typology. His main publications include "Asymmetry and a Markedness Theory", "A Study of Cognition and Chinese Grammar", and "Nouns and Verbs in Chinese". Email: jiaxuanshen@sina.com

TSANG Wai Lan is an Assistant Professor at the University of Hong Kong, specializing in second/third language acquisition. Her recent publications focus on the influence of a third language on a second language and the acquisition of Mandarin as a foreign language. She is also Editor of the Hong Kong Journal of Applied Linguistics. Email: tsangwl@hku.hk

YANG Bei obtained a PhD in Chinese linguistics at Fudan University and a Ph.D. in second language acquisition at the University of Iowa. She is presently Assistant Professor of Chinese language & linguistics and second language acquisition at the University of Wisconsin – Madison. She authored over ten articles in journals and edited volumes. In addition to experimental phonetics and sound patterns of Chinese, her current research interests are speech perception and production, L2 fluency development in different contexts, and CALL. Email: byang25@wisc.edu

YANG Yanning is Assistant Professor of Asian Languages & Cultures at National Institute of Education at Nanyang Technological University, Singapore. His research areas include Pragmatics, Discourse Analysis and Chinese teaching. Email: yanning.liu@nie.edu.sg

ZHOU Hong-hui obtained a PhD in linguistics at Zhejiang University, China. Currently, he is an Associate Professor and a Post-doctoral Researcher in the National

Key Research Center for Linguistics and Applied Linguistics at Guangdong University of Foreign Studies. His research interest is in pragmatics and cognitive linguistics. In the 2008–2009 academic year he received a grant from the Chinese government to spend one year at the State University of New York, Albany, U.S. learning pragmatic theories from Professor Istvan Kecskes. Email: honghui111@126.com